Case study: £3 million grant funding for early stage IT infrastructure project

A borrower looking for £3million funding for the development of an IT infrastructure project was referred to us by its relationship bank.

The bank's relationship team recognised the strong management team and sound business plan but knew that the business was too early stage to secure credit approval.

Keen to preserve the customer relationship for the long term, the relationship director referred the customer to Finance

Generator. We quickly identified debt and equity solutions, with the customer ultimately opting for an interest free grant funding solution.

The borrower was delighted with an affordable solution which takes the project to the next stage and with its relationship bank for orchestrating the introduction. The bank is now well placed to provide the next stage of funding.
